Atomic Cloud Is Fatal War Tool

Radioactive Mist Is Called Deadlier Than A-Bomb, Senators Told.

WASHINGTON — Senators were told by Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore airplane manufacturer, that our scientists are working on a radioactive cloud which will be released by planes at great heights without explosion of an atomic bomb.

Appearing before a senate commerce subcommittee considering establishment of a statutory national air policy, Martin said he is not sure this country should turn out too many atomic bombs because of work on this "cloud."

He told reporters that the "cloud" could be of greater military value than the atomic bomb, except that it might "boomerang" because it would drift with the wind and might come back and destroy American armies.

Urge Air Program.

A picture of an American aviation industry "slowly bleeding to death" and in urgent need of a five-year production program backed up by a definite government policy also was drawn for senators by representatives of the industry.

They told of a "financial crisis" in the industry because of sharp contraction of production and of a great need for long-range planning in research and development if Britain and Russia are not to outstrip the United States in technical advances and number of planes.

The group endorsed a bill by Chairman Brewster (Rep., Me.) to create a national air policy board composed of the secretaries of state, war, navy and commerce and two members each from the senate and house.

Oliver P. Echols, president of Aircraft Industries association and a former major general of the air forces, said the nation is not maintaining "a minimum industry capable of rapid expansion in an emergency."

Plane Output Low.

He reported only 1,339 military planes were turned out last year compared with a minimum annual output of 3,000 recommended by the government's air coordinating committee.

Without a five-year program established by law governing procedure practices and policies, he added, it will be impossible for the armed services "to buy modern aircraft and flying missiles efficiently and economically under the legislation adopted 20 years ago."

He also urged a "healthy commercial aviation" program as an aid in maintaining the aircraft manufacturing industry. This, he said, should include development of new airlines and encouragement of air freight.

He said Russia had continued her wartime plane production, while output in the United States dropped off precipitately beginning with 1944.

This 235-Pound Baby Sitter Finds That Boys Are Tough

BOSTON. — Boston's huskiest baby sitter is George Ramacorti, a 235-pound tackle on the Boston university football team.

Ramacorti, a former day laborer and bomb loader for the army, said those jobs weren't bad at all, "but this baby-sitting is really a tough one."

"They frighten me stiff," he said. "The little ones, I mean. I'm afraid when I pick them up they'll break in two."

Ramacorti finds little girls easier to handle than boys.

"The little girls only want you to tell them a story when they go to sleep just as nice as you please," he said. "But the boys—oh, golly! They really can kick up a fuss. As soon as they hear I'm a football player, they want to get down with me on the floor and try out a few tackles or blocks."

War Department Officials Urge Strategic Stockpiles

WASHINGTON. — Top army and navy officials have urged more stockpiling of raw materials needed for war production and the civilian economy.

Kenneth C. Royall, undersecretary of war, told a senate public lands subcommittee:

"We know that in the world today other nations are providing strategic military stockpiles," he said. "We cannot afford not to do the same."

John W. Kenney, assistant secretary of the navy, endorsed Royall's statement.

United States Halts Grabbing Of Property Owned by Reich

FRANKFURT, GERMANY.—The U. S. army halted all requisitioning of additional German property for military purposes in the American zone of Germany and in Berlin.

A headquarters announcement said that military commanders would not be permitted to seize any German property over and above that already used by Americans.

End of additional requisitioning was announced following recent criticism from German authorities, faced with critical housing shortages.

A Child Needs More Than The Three R's

"Readin', 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic" are fundemental, but they aren't sufficient by themselves. A fourth "R" must be added . . Religion. Give your child the religious training which is so vital in developing wholesome living and thinking. Take your child to Sunday School. Sit with him in church. Help him learn his Bible lessons. The church of your faith invites and urges you to come to its services.

Everybody knows it pays to buy U. S. Bonds. But not everybody knows how much it pays. By investing as small a sum as $2.50 a week in U. S. Bonds, your savings will be $1,440.84 in ten years. Take savings of $3.75 a week; by 1957, you will have $2,163.45. There are two easy ways to save automatically. Have a regular amount of money set aside from your pay each week for bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. Or, if you're not on a payroll, but you do have a checking account, you can have your bank automatically charge your account for the purchase price of a bond each month. U. S. Treasury Department

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain
Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the functional periodic distress of this type. Here's how it may help:
1 Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "time of month."
2 Started 3 days before "your time," it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes.
Try Cardui. If it helps, you'll be glad you did.
